Promise believes that Giving is an expression of our faith in God. The Bible teaches us that when we give, God will insure that we receive. It also teaches us that when we do not give, we rob God.

At Promise, we believe that a portion of everything we are given should be returned to God, whether it's energy, time, money, or anything else.

First the tithe, which is 10% of the increase in our lives, brought into the local church.

Then offerings, which is above the tithe, and it is in an amount which each individual purposes in their heart to give, also brought into the local church, and given in other ministries as well.

Then alms, which is outside the church structure and put into the hands of those in need. Examples include giving to widows and orphans, poor, underprivileged, and even those who have fallen temporarily on hard times.

Promise Christian Church takes a portion of the income received and also returns it to these three areas. Although there does not seem to be a scriptural mandate for a local church to give out from the resources it receives, there is a Godly, scriptural principle in Sowing and Reaping. We believe that God honors His promise to the church as a whole as well as to people in the church who give.

The Bible promises that if we do that, God will make sure His plan in our individual lives will be full of blessings so big we can't receive all of them!
